PEOPLE WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

My name is Shaun Webster, MBE. I am a parent, and a grandparent, with a learning disability.

I am also an international project worker for CHANGE.

I train organisations and employers to make information accessible, to change attitudes, encouraging the right support for people with learning disabilities by listening to them.

I work with young people with learning disabilities around self-advocacy and role-modelling. I am passionate about inclusive education and would like to push for more integration of children with learning disabilities into mainstream education.

I am very passionate about people with learning disabilities having a strong voice to be equal, to be respected and included in the workplace and in the community- in life all together!

I believe people with learning disabilities can become role models through peer-to-peer support.

PEOPLE WITH LEARNING DISABILITIES

I am a strong defender of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities Act.

I want to be involved in change and give the opportunities to others which I have received in my life experience.

I would welcome the opportunity to work with parents, carers and providers to listen and to advise on issues around good support, decision making and parenting.

I think I am a good candidate because I have real life experience of the challenges but also of the transformative powers of advocacy, campaigning and public speaking. I have been able to change my negative experiences into positives and want to support others to do the same.

I speak from my heart and speak for what I believe in.

I am always ready to listen to people and learn from them.

I am creative, open minded and like to think out-of-the box.

I really want to give people with learning disabilities a true voice and be respected as an equal.
